SOLICORE

Solid Hardwood Core Residential Doors

SOLICORE

Introducing hybrid technology of composite doors

SOLICORE is driven by innovating products which help our customers stand out from the crowd.

Developing a SOLICORE door was a logical step but it needed to push the boundaries. Drawing on the collective experience of our team and our specialist partners, we are able to offer the first composite door engineered with SOLICORE technology.

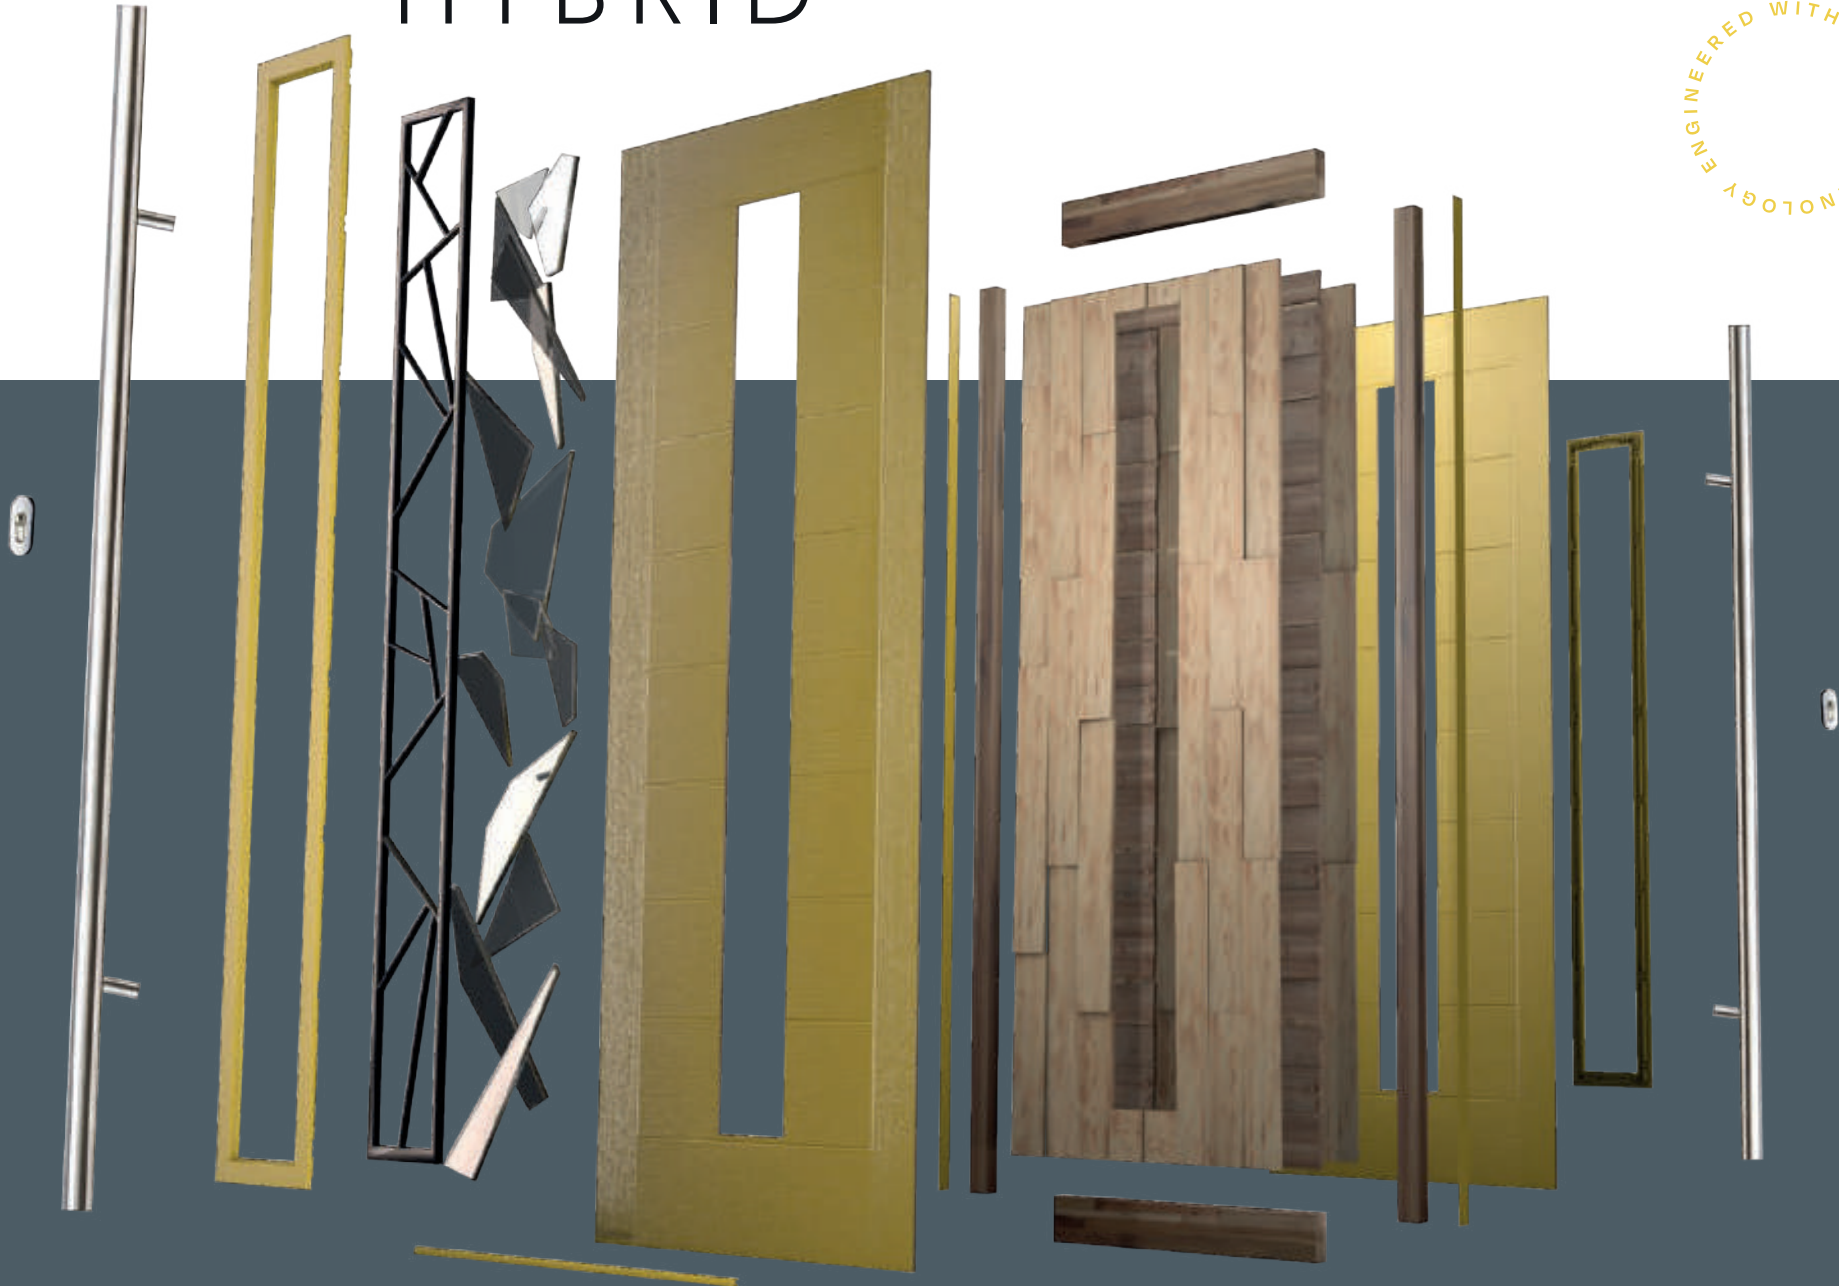

SOLICORE technology is a hybrid of modern and traditional materials and has been engineered to deliver a door that is stronger, more rigid and thermally stable than anything on the market. The solid inner core consists of 3 layers of cross laminated engineered hardwood, which is encased with LVL (Laminated Veneer Lumber) and hardwood stiles and rails for protection against any water ingress, and then pressed with SOLICORE's signature 4mm GRP skins. The result is a door that will not crack, move or de-laminate, requires minimal maintenance and will look beautiful and protect the home for years to come.

Safety & Security – the DNA of SOLICORE technology.

Glazing

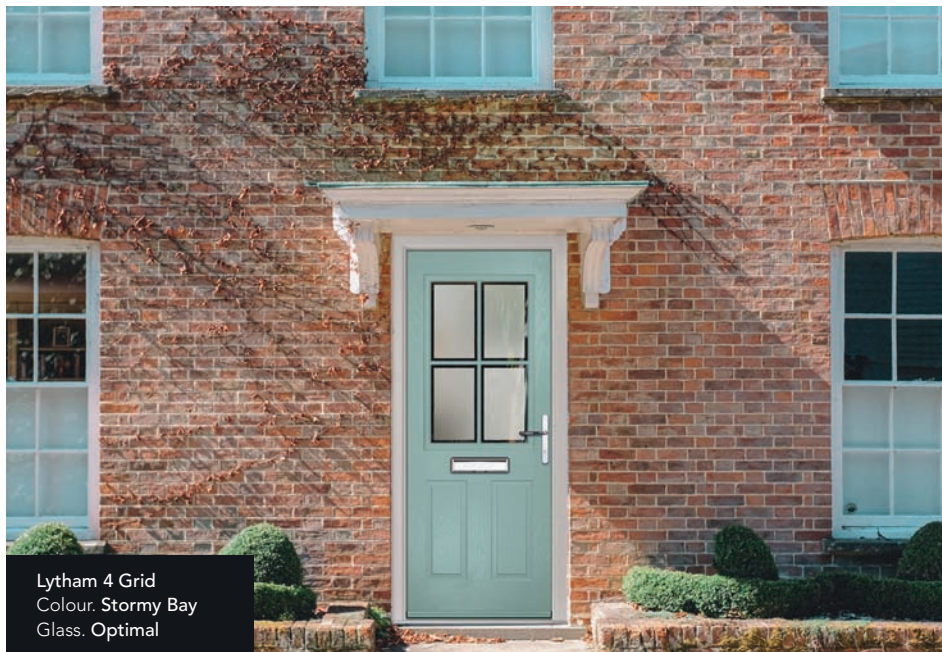

The glass you choose for a door can really set it apart. SOLICORE's bespoke decorative glass designs will really make your door stand out from the crowd.
